Behavioral Evaluation and Threat Assessment Team (BETA-Team)
Helpful Resources

BETA Team: <https://betateam.uoregon.edu/>

As part of a larger and institution-wide commitment to a safe campus environment, the University of Oregon's BETA Team is charged with developing comprehensive fact-based assessments of individuals who may present a threat to the university. The team includes representatives from Safety and Risk Services, the Office of the Provost and Academic Affairs, Police Department, Student Life, Human Resources, and the Office of Civil Rights Compliance. The team also includes psychologists from the University's Counseling Center. The General Counsel's Office serves as an adviser to the Team. The team is co-chaired by Safety and Risk Services and the University of Oregon Police Department.

The University of Oregon Police Department (UOPD): <https://police.uoregon.edu/>

UOPD operates 24 hours per day, year-round. Officers patrol the campus on foot, by bicycle and vehicle, and are responsible for campus safety, crime prevention and law enforcement. We actively collaborate with students and other campus partners to prioritize and respond to campus safety needs. UOPD serves campus with sworn police officers, community service officers, security officers, and civilian staff in a variety of roles. UOPD works with campus and community partners to track safety issues and use proven approaches for prevention and response.

UOPD is separate from the Eugene Police Department, and any other local law enforcement agencies. UOPD is a department of the University of Oregon and covers all campus properties as its jurisdiction. While UOPD works with Eugene Police and other agencies to prevent and solve crime, UOPD exists to serve students and campus community members, and can prioritize issues important to the campus community. UOPD works with student and faculty government as well as various campus departments and offices, to tailor services to the needs of the UO.

Office of the Provost: <https://provost.uoregon.edu/>

The Office of the Provost (OtP) is responsible for carrying out the academic mission of the University of Oregon. In doing so, the office works closely with faculty and staff to enhance academic excellence, student success, and the UO's overall academic profile.

Led by the provost and senior vice president, OtP is a dynamic office that leads and manages a variety of initiatives, processes, and services. The office:

- Supports and coordinates matters that pertain to faculty success, including hiring, retention, promotion, and tenure processes
- Promotes the highest standards in teaching, research, and service
- Works closely with the schools and colleges and other critical academic units to advance individual unit success
- Manages academic financial allocations
- Advances the UO's outreach to the community, state, nation, and world through various reporting units

The Office of the Provost has developed a website to Academic Freedom as a resource for UO faculty. Academic Freedom enables a faculty member to research and teach without fear of interference or reprisals from potentially coercive forces, whether extramural or intramural, within established legal and ethical bounds:
